PREPARE FOR SUMMER TRADE

Gettysburg Hotels Installing New Furnishings in Preparation for this Year's Tourist Business. Other Improvements.

That they believe the coming summer in Gettysburg will be a good one for tourist trade is shown by the activity of the various hotelmen in renovating their places, in adding equipment, and in refurbishing the rooms.

At the Eagle Hotel Frank Eberhart, proprietor, stated this morning that he expects to put in a number of private baths, increasing materially the number already installed. There is an increasing demand for this form of accommodation and each year, for some time past, Mr. Eberhart has been adding to the number of rooms so arranged.

He will also refurbish a number of the bedrooms of the hotel, putting in new furniture and carpets. Repapering is to be done also and all other portions of the hotel not in first class condition will be renewed. The work will be started before long and completed in time for the opening of the spring season.

Henry Scharf, the new manager of Hotel Gettysburg, has had the entire place overhauled since he took charge some weeks ago. Every room in the hotel has been cleaned, all the wood-work in the bedrooms repainted, a number of new carpets laid and some furniture installed. Still further work along the same line is contemplated for the next month or two.

One of the most notable improvements to the place will be the completion of the lighting system in the lobby. Several years ago, when the hotel was remodeled, plans were drawn for an attractive arrangement of the lights here but they were never carried out. Mr. Scharf expects to have the fixtures in place in ample time for early spring tourists. The principal feature of the system will center about the two large pillars.

The other hotels of town will also be given attention so that all coming here will be sure of attractive accommodations.

WANT PASTOR RETURNED

York Springs Methodist Charge Wants Rev. Mr. McGarvey again.

At the fourth quarterly conference of the York Springs Methodist charge, held in Bendersville on Monday, a unanimous request for the return of the present pastor, Rev. Luther McGarvey, was presented to District Superintendent Faisick. Twenty two persons were present and good reports were received from all the churches. The Wrensville revival continues in interest. Twenty penitents have come to the altar and there have been nine conversions to date.

LOOK FOR PAYMENT

Wilson Signs Bill to Pay Cattlemen for Animals Killed.

Prompt payment of farmers' claims for cattle slaughtered in the federal campaign against the foot and mouth disease was promised by the department Tuesday, when President Wilson signed an urgent deficiency appropriation bill carrying $2,500,000 to cover the expense of this work. Up to January 1, the campaign had cost the government $2,129,138.

MANY TOWNSHIPS ASK FOR BRIDGES

County Commissioners Have Numerous Requests on File. York Men Confer on Erecting an Inter-County Bridge.

No less than twelve applications for new bridges at various points in the county are now before the Adams County Commissioners. Some of them represent viewers' grants, made as long as ten years ago. All are for bridges where none now exists.

Only this week attention was called by a committee of Liberty township citizens to the necessity of a bridge across the creek near the farm of David Guise. Residents of that township appeared at the office of the County Commissioners to urge their claims and to call attention to the grant made some years ago for the relief which they are now urging.

Other requests for bridges over county streams include one over Marsh Creek at the Charles Toot farm; one at the Waybright fording below Natural Dam; one at Fissel's farm in Mount Joy township; one in Latimore township at Bupp's Mill; one in Mount Pleasant township at Brush Run School House; one across the Big Conewago on the line between Tyrone and Straban townships at the Roop farm. Several other requests also appear on the minute books of the commissioners for some years back, the desires of the residents being brought to the notice of the county board from time to time by renewed petitions.

On Tuesday, members of the board of county commissioners of York County came to Gettysburg to confer with the local commissioners relative to the inter-county bridges in the vicinity of East Berlin. Residents of the two counties want a bridge built by the two boards to take the place of the present township bridge over Beaver Creek. It would require a structure 40 or 45 feet in length. No action was taken at Tuesday's meeting, when repairs to the existing inter-county bridges were also taken under advisement.

BUSY DAYS AT LOCAL COLLEGE

Sophomores Prepare to Give Play During Junior Week. Basket Ball Team Leaves on a Three Day Trip. Mid-Years Coming on.

The college basket ball team leaves on Thursday morning for a three days' trip to Central Pennsylvania. They will play Susquehanna at Selins Grove on Thursday evening; Bucknell at Lewisburg Friday night; and State College on Saturday. Their past showing leads local supporters to hope for a trio of victories. The game with Susquehanna gains importance through the membership of that team in the Inter-Collegiate League.

The cast for the Sophomore play have been selected and are now being drilled regularly. It will be given on Saturday evening, February 20 as one of the attractions of Junior Week. The Prom is to be held the night before and on the afternoon of February 19 Bucknell plays basket ball here. On Thursday evening, the 18th, the Fisher Shipp Concert Company will appear in Brua Chapel as one of the numbers of the annual entertainment course.

Arrangements are being completed for the annual tour of the combined musical clubs of the college which will be taken during the early spring. The clubs will likely go west but not any farther than Connellsville. A ten days' trip is proposed and the clubs are arranging their program for the outing.

Next week marks the mid-year examination period. The schedule of the tests has been posted and from Friday night, for one week, residents of the town may expect to see but little of the college boys on the streets for they will be busy preparing for their examinations. Midnight oil has been replaced by early morning electricity and the windows in the dormitories will gleam brightly until far into the night for a week or more. The reports of the first semester will be made out shortly after the completion of the work. There will be no recess between the two terms.

The base ball management is preparing an ambitious schedule for the spring months. The team promises to be as strong as last year and worthy opponents are being sought so that the institution may reap full benefit in the desirable advertising which a good team produces.

CLASSIS MEETING

Will Welcome Pastor from the Pittsburgh Synod.

A special meeting of Gettysburg Classis will be held in Hanover February 5th, to receive Rev. W. E. Garrett, the newly elected pastor of the New Oxford charge, into the classis and confirm his call. Rev. Mr. Garrett comes from the Allegheny Classis of the Pittsburgh Synod.

Gettysburg Classis will also consider overtures of Zion Classis to receive two congregations, Stoverstown and New Salem, into the classis and make them part of the Lischey charge, Rev. I. S. Ditzler, pastor.

NEW MILLINER

York Man will Open Shop here in Spring.

The store room on Chambersburg street, at present occupied by the tailoring establishment of R. H. Bushman, has been leased to H. F. Smith, of York, who will open a millinery store early in the spring. Mr. Bushman will have his business place with that of John W. Brehm.

REVIVAL SUCCEEDS

Tuesday Evening's Service Results in Seven Conversions.

From the tangible results secured, Tuesday evening's revival service was the most successful since the series was started at the Methodist church. There were three decisions, four conversions and four requests for prayer.

SHOW GETTYSBURG IN GUIDE BOOK

Attractive Features of Battlefield and the Town will Form a Part of Two Hundred Page Guide Issued for Lincoln Highway.

The Lincoln Highway Association is now compiling and will have ready for distribution some time in March, a two hundred page volume containing all the information needed by the cross-country driver who follows the Lincoln Highway. Gettysburg's attractions will be fully covered in the book.

There seem to be literally thousands of people in every part of the country who intend to drive to the Pacific coast over the Lincoln Highway this year.

This complete official road guide of the Lincoln Highway will answer every question which the prospective tourist could possibly want answered. In it are included the complete reports of the several scores of official Lincoln Highway drivers who covered the entire route in one day on the 27th of last November, just before all touring was stopped by the snow.

The book will give the mileages, the stops, the accommodations, the names of the hotels along the route and their rates, the garages and their rates, the approximate price of supplies in every locality, the condition of the roads, the local speed limits—everything which will be of benefit to the tourist.

The American Automobile Association has secured a quantity for the use of its members.

TO VISIT TOWN

Hiking Boy Scouts Plan an Extensive Trip.

Including Gettysburg in their itinerary a troop of Frederick Boy Scouts are planning a 200-mile hiking trip.

The itinerary will take in Gettysburg, Carlisle, Shippensburg, Chambersburg, Hagerstown, Antietam, Harpers Ferry, Charlestown, Winchester, Leesburg and Washington, the route covering four states and the District of Columbia.

It is believed the trip, which will last two weeks, can be taken with an expense of five dollars to each scout, unless it will be necessary to hire two horses for the prairie schooner, which will carry the provisions and camp paraphernalia. The troop has hopes that some business man will donate the use of two horses for the trip.

Scout demonstrations will be given in each town visited, and the drum corps of the troop will do its share to entertain. After this, a collection will be taken, the money to be used to help defray the cost of the hike.

TO CELEBRATE DAY

Local Residents will Wear Carnation in Memory of McKinley.

Gettysburg will join the nationwide celebration of Carnation Day on Friday by wearing the favorite flower of President McKinley. This method of celebrating his birthday has been in vogue for a number of years and has grown more popular annually. President McKinley favored the red carnation but the supply of these is not usually large so that all colors of the flower are worn to show that the day is observed.

FUNERAL

Frank A. Beiter Buried from his Sister's Home.

The funeral of the late Frank A. Beiter, who died in East Pittsburgh on Monday, was held this afternoon at half past one o'clock from the home of his sister, Mrs. William B. Fleming, on Baltimore street. Interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

Mr. Beiter's death was caused by pneumonia.

ARENDTSTVILLE

Arendtsville—Benton Thomas, of Gettysburg, who has a position in New York City, is spending several days here in the home of his aunt, Mrs. Lizzie J. Raffensperger.

Mrs. M. H. Hugh, of this place, and her sister, Miss Maud Stark, of Pittsburgh, spent several days recently with friends in Harrisburg.

Messrs. John F. Bushey and Aaron I. Weidner, are attending the agricultural meeting in Harrisburg.

The officers of the Parent Teachers' Association of Arendtsville are as follows: president, John Knouss; secretary, Miss Carrie Lady; and treasurer, Mrs. C. L. Criswell. Friday, February 5, is the time for the next meeting. Beside the music by the Arendtsville Glee Club and the schools, there will be addresses by C. S. Rice, Mrs. Allen Trostle and Rev. T. C. Hesson. Everybody is cordially invited to this meeting.

On February 22nd in the new High School building at Arendtsville a joint meeting of the Parent Teachers Association and the educational rally of Arendtsville borough will mark the opening of the building. A program is being arranged and it is announced that a prominent speaker will be secured for the evening.

BOGUS EGG POWDERS

State Flooded with Concoctions Alleged to Be Good.

Two more bogus "egg" powders have been brought to the attention of Pure Food Commissioner Foust, and it seems that the state is being flooded with substitutes for the real thing. The two new concoctions were sent to the Pure Food Department when an expose was made of an article that was being offered as a substitute for egg which professed to be part egg, but which was analyzed and found to contain no egg and poisonous dyestuff to give it color.

The two new preparations were also analyzed and found to contain corn starch and aniline dye, and the decree has gone forth that their sales must be stopped at once. The chemists report that both are fakes and rank frauds and that an ounce of corn starch is represented to contain the nutriment of a dozen eggs. The unsuspecting are purchasing the stuff all over the state, and, unless the sale is stopped after due warning, a number of arrests will be made.

BIG CROPS

County Agents will Spread Latest Ideas in Farming.

Plans for carrying into the rural districts of Pennsylvania the latest thoughts in scientific agriculture have been formulated at State College.

One of the important features of the conference was the determination of uniform rules for the organization of boys' and girls' clubs to promote corn and vegetable growing contests.

Hints on the organization of canning clubs for country girls were given by A. K. Rothenberger, the Montgomery county agent. He told his co-workers that Eva Buckwalter, a young girl in his district, made enough profit from her efforts in preserving to spend Farmers' Week at the Pennsylvania State College. Another girl, Sarah Anders, 13 years old, he said, grew tomatoes at the rate of forty tons per acre.

Charles Preston, the Chester county agent, said the average yield in the corn growing contest in his county was 85 bushels per acre.

Substitute for Lemons.

Some years ago my uncle, a physician in a small town, received a call to the country and asked me to accompany him, writes a correspondent. The patient was the wife of a very miserly man who lived in the backwoods. My uncle advised the husband to give his wife good, wholesome food and to purchase some lemons for her. The husband said: "Won't pickles do just as well? I have pickles as sour as any lemon."

How Indians Purified Water.

The Indians had a way of purifying water from a pond or swamp by digging a hole about a foot across and down about six inches below the water level a few feet from the pond. After it was filled with water, they bailed it out quickly, repeating the bailing process about three times. After the third bailing the hole would be filled with filtered water. Try it.—Boy Scout Handbook.

GERMANS RENEW RUSH IN FLANDERS

Violent Fighting in Vicinity of Ypres and La Basse.

TEUTONS PLANNING BIG COUP

Paris and Berlin Official Reports
Each Claim Gains in Flanders and Alsace.

London, Jan. 27.—Violent fighting on the Flanders front and on the western end and center of the Aisne battle line gives rise to the belief that the Germans have renewed their attempts to break through the allied positions at those points.

Reports have reached Amsterdam that the Germans in Belgium are preparing a big military venture. Details of the expected coup have not been revealed, but all the railroads of Belgium are being used exclusively for military purposes. Great quantities of war material are being sent to the front.

The Kaiser has sent his second son, Prince Eitel Friedrich, to Alsace with orders to take the town of Thann at any cost, according to a dispatch from Paris to the Daily News. This is believed to account largely for the severe fighting on that end of the long battle line, which has now seen 135 days of conflict.

The sweeping regulations for the conservation of the food supply of Germany, including the confiscation of the entire grain crop, is regarded in London, however, as the most significant item of news received from the countries at war. The government defends the regulation on the ground that in order to upset the plans of Germany's enemies to starve the empire it is necessary to make certain of a regular supply of foodstuffs until the next harvest.

Allies Hurl Germans Back.
Paris, Jan. 27.—The French war office gave out an official report as follows:

"On the Yser front Belgian troops have made progress in the vicinity of Pervyse. At daybreak Monday the Germans, one battalion strong, delivered an attack against our trenches to the east of Ypres.

"This movement was arrested sharply. Three hundred dead, including the commandant of the company at the head of the German advance, were left on the field of battle. This attack was to have been supported by certain companies from the German second line, but these men, under the very exact fire of our artillery, found it impossible to come out from behind their shelters.

"Not far from La Basse, at Givenchy and Guiney, the enemy delivered five attacks against the British line. After having made some slight progress the Germans were repulsed and left on the field numerous dead and sixty prisoners, including two officers. This attack was accompanied by endeavors at diversion at several points on our front. Between the road from Bethune to La Basse and Aix Noulette, a detachment of the enemy then endeavored to come out from its trenches as it was once stopped by the fire of our infantry and of our artillery.

"To the west of Craonne the enemy delivered two successive attacks, each of great violence. The first was repulsed, but the second penetrated our trenches. By an energetic counter attack, however, our troops succeeded in regaining almost all of the ground lost by them.

"In the Champagne district the artillery of the enemy showed less activity than on preceding days, while our batteries delivered an effective fire against the German positions. In the Argonne, in the vicinity of St. Hubert, we checked with our artillery fire an attempt on the part of the Germans to deliver an attack.

"In Alsace the enemy was active in the employ of his mine throwers against our positions at Hartmannweiler Kopf. The Germans bombarded Thann, Lunenburg and Sennheim."

Germans Take Two Positions.

Berlin, Jan. 27.—The German war office issued the following statement: "In the western theater the enemy, following his custom, placed Middlekerke and Westende (in Belgium) under fire. A large number of the inhabitants were killed or injured by this fire; they included the burgomaster of Middlekerke.

"Our losses Monday were small. Our troops attacked the positions of the English on both sides of La Basse canal. While the attack to the north of the canal between Givenchy and the canal did not lead to the capture of any English positions on account of the troops from Baden, to the south of the canal, met with complete success. In this region English positions extending for over a width of 1100 meters (1200 yards) were all taken by storm and two strong points of support were captured. Three officers and 110 men were taken prisoners and one cannon and three machine guns were captured.

"The English attempted to recapture the positions which had been immediately employed for our own purposes, but they were beaten back with heavy losses. Our losses were comparatively small."

RUSSIA WILL FIGHT TO END

Foreign Minister Reiterates
Czar's Statement.

Petrograd, Jan. 27.—"The government stands for the fulfillment of the emperor's manifesto, issued the day war was declared, that so long as a single soldier of the enemy remains on Russian soil, no peace will be concluded."

In these words, Sergius Sazonoff, foreign minister, at a meeting of the duma, answered inquiries by leading members. These inquiries were suggested by the determination of the German reichstag that all territory "reddened by German blood," now occupied by Germany, should be retained.

The meeting was preparatory to the opening sessions of the council of state on Jan. 30, and of the duma on Feb. 9.

"As to the evacuation of the enemy's territory, we are bound by an agreement with our allies," M. Sazonoff continued. "The words of the manifesto must not be limited to Russian territory."

M. Sazonoff said that Great Britain was bearing conscientiously the tremendous burden of her share of the war.

The assistant minister of war said that the Russian manufacturers were meeting satisfactorily all the demands made upon them by the government.

Pierre Kharitonov, secretary of state, said the financial condition of the country was good. It was intimated that an agreement with Sweden would be reached providing for railway connection between the two countries.

POISON KILLING GIRL

Richmond Woman Takes Death Drug After Returning Home From Visit.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 27.—Miss Rosa Jennings, nineteen years old, who recently returned from Philadelphia after a visit there, is slowly dying at her home from the effects of poisoning.

The doctors say she will live only two or three days. She says she does not want to die. Why she took the poison remains a mystery, though her mother says that she did not seem the same after her return from Philadelphia. An unfortunate love affair is suspected.

Miss Jennings was eager to become a nurse, and when her mother dissuaded her from this purpose she decided to visit friends in Philadelphia.

FIRE IN SOUTH BETHLEHEM

Flames Destroy Hotel and Damage Stores in Heart of City.

South Bethlehem, Pa., Jan. 27.—Caffrey's hotel, at Third and New streets, in the heart of the city, was badly damaged by fire, whose origin is a mystery.

Several stores in the building were damaged by fire and water. The building was saved, but the contents are a total loss.

The structure is near a whole block of wooden buildings. The South Bethlehem and the Bethlehem fire departments saved adjoining property after a hard fight. The loss to the Caffrey property, deducting insurance, will be about $25,000. Owners of the burned stores will lose several thousand dollars.

Austrian Cruiser Sunk.
London, Jan. 27.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Venice says it is reported there from Trieste that an Austrian cruiser has struck a mine near the Brioni Islands and sunk. The Brioni Islands are at the mouth of the harbor of Pola, Austria's naval base on the Adriatic.

Reading Boosts Price of Pretzels.
Reading, Pa., Jan. 27.—An advance in the price of pretzels, Reading's noted luxury, which has made the city famous, is announced by the half dozen manufacturers to go into effect Feb. 1. The intended advance is due to the increased cost of flour.

The Weather.
Forecast for this section: Partly cloudy today; unsettled tomorrow; shifting winds.

NO DIVIDEND ON STEEL COMMON

Big Fall in Earnings of the Corporation.

New York, Jan. 27.—The United States Steel Corporation suspended the dividend on the common stock.

The regular quarterly dividend of 1 1/2 per cent was declared on the preferred stock. At its last meeting the board of directors reduced the quarterly dividend on the common stock from 1 1/4 per cent to 1/2 of one per cent.

Total earnings of the corporation for the last quarter of 1914 were $10,933,170; the net income for the quarter was $6,345,258. The deficit for the quarter was $5,695,283.

These returns compare with total earnings at the end of the previous quarter of $22,276,002, and net income for the quarter of $14,682,022. The last previous quarter showed a surplus for the first time in 1914. It was $89,479.

The amount of common stock outstanding is $508,202,500. It required $25,415,125 a year to pay 5 per cent on this sum, or $8,353,701 per quarter. It has been estimated that $122,404,500 of the common stock was held in Europe.

WILSON SEES BETTER TIMES

Reports of Unemployed Extravagant, Says the President.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The census of unemployed, begun in New York under the direction of the department of labor, will be extended to all cities, if arrangements can be made.

The president expressed the opinion that the number of unemployed was decreasing, as new avenues of employment are being opened. Estimates of the number of unemployed were very largely guesswork, he thought, and in many instances most extravagant. Municipal lodging houses in New York are not full, he said he had been informed.

These facts convinced him there was not as much distress from unemployment as had been pictured. He believes there is a general betterment in conditions. There is no depression in the west, he said, and the situation in the south and east is improving.

HITS BOTTLED BEER TRADE

State Senate Bill Would Prevent Direct Sales to Householders.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 27.—A bill introduced in the state senate, if enacted into law, would prevent bottlers from selling beer to households.

It prohibits the sale by manufacturers or wholesalers of intoxicants to persons or corporations not licensed to sell liquor at retail.

The bill was introduced by Senator Sensesch, of Westmoreland county, and is the first measure pertaining to the regulation of the liquor business to be presented in the senate this session.

Senator Sensesch explained that the primary object of the bill is to prevent wholesalers from sending in to the mining towns where there are no licensed saloons liquor by the wagonload.

Conviction under the law carries a fine not exceeding $1000 and forfeiture of the license.

ALL GRAINS AT TOP NOTCH

Big Dealings in Corn and Oats Touch Highest Prices in Years.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—All grains—corn, oats, rye and barley, as well as wheat—sold at the highest prices here in many years at this season.

Assertions were current that the 1915 crop of wheat, which is not yet out of the ground, was already being sold for export.

The biggest rise in price was for July wheat, the first delivery of the 1915 crop. July showed a jump of at least five cents a bushel from quotations in the early trading.

The closing prices of July were nervous at a gain of 4 1/4 cents, compared with the previous day. May wheat overtopped the previous high at war price and reached $1.45 1/2.

May corn closed at 80 1/2 and July at 81 1/2. May oats closed at 58 1/2 and July at 56 1/2.

KIELCE IS RETAKEN BY TEUTONIC ALLIES

Russians Were Driven Out
After Furious Fighting.

Berlin, Jan. 27.—A dispatch received from Cracow, Galicia, says that the Austro-German forces have recaptured Kielce, in Russian Poland, after heavy fighting.

Kielce is the capital of the Russian province of that name and lies in southern Poland, about fifty miles north of the border of Galicia. In that region has occurred some of the heaviest fighting of the campaign. Kielce has been a Russian base and is the most important railroad junction northeast of Cracow. Its capture follows the beginning of a new offensive movement by the Austro-German armies all along the eastern front.

Russia Preparing to Invade Hungary

Petrograd, Jan. 27.—Great masses of Russian troops are being moved into Bukovina to meet the Austrian army concentrated on the Hungarian Bukovina frontier.

Staff headquarters have been established at Czernowitz. More than six army corps (350,000 men) have been concentrated in southern Bukovina. For five days only troop trains have been permitted on the two railroad lines running south from Czernowitz.

Russians Drive Back Turks.

Petrograd, Jan. 27.—The general staff of the army in the Caucasus has issued the following communication: "Our offensive in the region of Trans-Choruk continues, despite an obstinate defensive on the part of the Turks.

"In the region of Olti, some isolated fighting occurred with Turkish detachments.

"Along the other sections of the front the usual cannonading continues."

GERMAN CRUISER TORPEDOED

Gazelle Struck by Submarine, But Manages to Reach Port.

Malmö, Sweden, Jan. 27.—It is persistently reported that the German protected cruiser Gazelle was torpedoed by a submarine of unknown nationality at a point in the Baltic near the Island of Rugen, off the coast of Prussia. The Gazelle, damaged, returned to the port of Sassnitz.

The Gazelle is a sister ship to the Niobe. She has a displacement of 2645 tons, a complement of 264 men and is 328 feet long.

RUSSIANS SMASH ZEPPELIN

Dirigible Which Attacked Libau Felled and Crew Imprisoned.

London, Jan. 27.—It was officially announced in London that the Zeppelin which on Monday dropped bombs on the Russian port of Libau, in the Baltic sea, was destroyed and that the members of its crew were taken prisoners.

In November Libau, which is an important port well to the south of Petrograd, was bombarded from the sea by the Germans.

Say King Albert Has Fled.

London, Jan. 27.—The Express has printed the following dispatch from Amsterdam: "General von Blessing, German governor general of Belgium, has caused placards to be posted on the walls at Brussels that King Albert had abandoned his army and fled to England. It is reported that a number of Belgians, believing the placards committed suicide."

80,000 Ready to Invade Egypt.

Athens, Jan. 27.—Advices from Constantinople say that 80,000 Turks from the army that is being sent to invade Egypt. Of these 48,000 have been concentrated at El Arish, on the Mediterranean, and 32,000 at El Akaba, at the head of the Gulf of Akaba.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD

Start Early so that Gettysburg People can Come Home on Express.

Denman Thompson's perennial drama of New England country life will be the attraction at the Hanover Opera House, Friday evening, January 29. The play is now in the 29th year of its existence. "The Old Homestead" is a play that pleases all classes. When ministers of the Gospel urge their congregations to attend a theatrical performance and preach its moral from the pulpit it follows necessarily that the play itself is far above the average in point of merit, wholesomeness, purity and truth. Yet, that is precisely what the ministers of the Gospel have been doing and are doing in the case of "The Old Homestead." Not a night passes, when the company is on tour, that clergymen of all denominations, Protestants and Catholics are not present interested and enthusiastic spectators and auditors of this grand old New England idyl. Like the play itself the audiences are a study, an object lesson in the life of the community. All classes are represented in "The Old Homestead"—the banker, the lawyer, the merchant, the plain mechanic and the plain farmer. To the young it is a delightful and romantic idyl, the youngest child in the audience enjoying its humor, and its pathos, quite as much as the older generation. The original production under the personal direction of Mr. Frank Thompson, will be seen at Hanover. Curtain promptly 8:15.—advertisement

SUNDAY STIRS RICH AUDIENCE

Society Fascinated by Earnestness of Baseball Evangelist.

CUTS CORNERS OF SLANG.

Wealthy Woman Carries Him Off in Her Car, Begging Him to Preach in Her Residence—Drives Eloquence Home as He Pleads With Ultra Exclusive Set to Be Good.

Billy Sunday, the baseball evangelist, preached by special invitation in Philadelphia to several hundred members of that city's ultra exclusive social set. His tabernacle was for the time the drawing room of the residence of Anthony J. Drexel-Biddle, more familiarly known as "Tony," at 2104 Walnut street.

But if society was looking for one of his ripsnorting, slang slinging, jumping jack harangues he fooled them. He was quiet, though intense, and he didn't use a word that was not perfectly proper and properly placed.

Before the unusual service the streets about the Biddle home were awash with scores of limousines, and the crowd entering the house looked like one bound for a fashionable wedding, with its top hats and costly furs and millinery.

Banker's Wife Impressed.

Afterward all the hearers of the peppery little ex-outfielder seemed deeply impressed. Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury thought so much of Sunday that she invited him to preach in her home at 1925 Walnut street as soon as possible and took him away in her own motor, so that she might better plead with him. He said he would deliver the sermon as soon as he found an open date.

Billy, after an opening prayer, said in the Biddle house:

"If for some reason or another you have given Christ up I may recall to you Henry van Dyke's story of 'The Last Word.' It may be the heart's narrative of many of you."

The audience, expecting something in tumultuous slang, opened its eyes at the nice diction.

"You may remember the young Horaces," Billy continued, "son of the great man who was a friend of the king of Antioch. He had deliberated long and finally accepted Christianity and was driven from the house of his father. All of his desires, all of his pleasures, he gave up. Many people do not do that. They go on and on like stamped cattle, rushing always down."

Rich Can Be Friend of God.

"One can be wealthy and still be a friend of God. Abraham was one of the richest men of his time, but he was a friend of God."

"There are those among you that never pray—except when some one is sick or dead. The good God has to tear some people out of the social whirl and flatten them on their backs and shake a shroud before their eyes before they remember his name. Oh, my friends, it isn't right; it isn't right. I tell you from my soul that I am staggered and stunned when I consider the patience of God."

"If you were neglected, snubbed, forgotten, derided, ridiculed, abandoned, if you were left by your friends as you leave your God, what would you do? Would you hate? Would you destroy? But yet God waits for you, patient always. His hands stretched out with the peace that passeth understanding!"

"What have you so great or so beautiful as the contentment and the happiness that he offers you?"

At the close of the sermon Billy was escorted to the front of the house by Mr. and Mrs. Biddle, and the line passed before him while he shook the hands of one after another, with his genial smile.

INTRODUCING THE TELESCIBE

Panama-Pacific Fair to Show Edison's Latest Invention.

Among the remarkable exhibits to be shown at the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco will be Thomas A. Edison's latest invention, the "telescibe." This is a combination of telescope and dictaphone and has never before been exhibited at an international exposition. It fulfills Mr. Edison's prediction, uttered in 1870, that perfection in telephonic communication would be reached only when means were discovered for combining the telephone and phonograph.

When the receiver of the desk telephone is removed from the hook and placed in the socket of the "telescibe" the acoustic connection of the dictating machine is made, and then the user takes up the small receiver attached to a "telescibe" and begins conversation. In this way both sides of the conversation are recorded on the telescibe cylinder and communication with the central operator is shut off, thus preventing "breaking in" on the line. The value of the telescibe is shown by the fact that the telephone system transmits 60 percent of all forms of communication in the United States, totaling 15,000,000,000 conversations a year, a grand total in excess of the number of telegrams, letters and railroad passengers in the same period.

The Soliloquy of an Old Soldier

You need not watch for silver in your hair.
Or try to smooth the wrinkles from your eyes.
Or wonder if you're getting quite too spare.
Or if your mount can bear a man your size.

You'll never come to shirk the fastest flight.
To query if she really cares to dance.
To find your eye less keen upon the night.
Or lose your tennis wrist or golfing stance.

For you the music ceased on highest note—
Your charge had won, you'd scattered them like sand.

And then a little whisper in your throat.
And you asleep, your cheek upon your hand.

Three happy fate, you met it in full cry.
Young, eager, loved, your glittering world all joy—
You ebb'd not out, you died when tide was high.
An old campaigner envies you, my boy!

—O. C. A. Child in New York Times.

YOUNGEST WARRIOR IN ALGERIAN COMMAND

French Boy, Determined to Fight, Takes Place With African Troops.

Search for the youngest soldier has resulted in the locating of Christian du Jonchay, aged fourteen years, of the Algerian cavalry. He is a son of Lieutenant Colonel du Jonchay of the cavalry and grandson of General de Soundis, who fought with distinction in the war of 1870 and was killed in December of that year at the battle of Patay.

Not being able because of his age to enlist in a French regiment, Christian, who is strong and vigorous for his age, went to Algeria and engaged in one of the corps of cavalry. He is now at the front and has taken part in several engagements, in which he has borne himself valiantly.

The youngest of the wounded is Henri Derombier, aged thirteen. Young Derombier, who was employed in the hospital at St. Nicholas, was allowed to go out and help bring in the wounded under shell and shrapnel fire when he himself was struck by the fragment of a shell.

Charles Trottemont, aged thirteen, of Nancy, who is the oldest of a large family of children, declared when the movement of troops began "there should be at least one of each family to defend France," so he followed the Fourteenth regiment from Toul when it passed through Nancy during the middle of August and was adopted by one of the companies of that regiment, with which he made the greatest part of the campaign of Lorraine.

He was chiefly engaged in running errands. Lamenting that he was unable to handle a gun, he succeeded in getting himself adopted by the Fourth regiment of heavy artillery, which used him chiefly to pass shells. Captain Michelant, who commanded the battery, had an artillery uniform made for him and treated him in every respect as a real soldier. He was able to avoid pursuit of his relatives until, after participating in so many battles, his exploits disclosed his whereabouts, and his family promptly reclaimed him from the army.

FOR CANNED ART LECTURES.

Boston Man Would Have Nickel in Slot Phonographs in Museum.

Municipal nickel in the slot art lectures were advocated by Henry Turner Bailey of Boston, prominent art authority and former supervisor of drawing in the public schools, at the Twentieth Century club's discussion of "The Significance of Chinese Art."

"I would like to see installed in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts," said Mr. Bailey, "a slot machine where, upon the dropping of a coin, by phonographic reproduction I could get an explanation of the particular subject I wanted to understand and appreciate."

He declared that the museum authorities should place the best specimen of Chinese pottery, for instance, in concealment. "Then in some conspicuous place post directions telling us what to look for to see what is artistic."

BADGES FOR CONGRESSMEN.

Raid Results in Bill Requiring Members to Wear Shields.

Indignant because Washington gamblers caught in a raid on a Maryland poolroom represented themselves as members of congress, Representative Carey of Wisconsin introduced a resolution providing that members of the house shall wear a badge bearing the inscription, "Member of Congress." The resolution was offered as a result of statements that in a recent raid at Myers Station, Md., several persons were immediately released on saying they were congressmen.

The bill provides that the official title "Member of Congress" is neither license to transgress the law nor to render one immune from prosecution. There is a good deal of sentiment in the house favorable to the bill.

Maggie O'Leary Dead.

Mrs. Maggie O'Leary, who for forty years lived alone in a little farmhouse near Escanaba, Mich., is dead. Neighbors declare she was the woman whose cow was credited with causing the great Chicago fire of 1871. In 1873, when officials from the World's fair came to urge her to attend the exposition, Mrs. O'Leary refused.

Persia money was the preferred delicacy. There was none other used by civilized man; savage man doubtless satisfied his hunger for sweets by eating fruits and vegetables containing natural sugar.

MONKEYS AS FORECASTERS.

Animals Howl Loudest and Most Often Before Storm—Volume of Sound Suggests Roar of Lions—There Are Countless Bats, Strong, Muscular and Always Ready to Bite.

H. E. Anthony and George Shiras 3d have returned to New York from a trip to the Panama canal zone, where they went to obtain flashlight photographs and specimens of animal life. The trip was made in apprehension that faunal conditions would undergo abrupt changes with the damming of Gatun lake and the consequent extension of the inland water areas. Although canal completion has converted expanses that were nearly all marsh, except at the height of the rainy season, into a lake of 164 square miles area and from sixty to eighty feet deep in many places, the visitors were in time to find many primitive faunal conditions. Mr. Anthony, who went as collector for the Museum of Natural History, reports the trip in the current issue of the Museum Journal.

Adventures began with "black howlers," the largest of the Panamanian monkeys, whose booming and roaring calls carry long distances through the tangled wilds. These animals howl loudest and most often before a storm, and thus the natives regard them as weather prophets. Mr. Anthony says he came upon a troop of the monkeys while the first drops of a sudden shower were pattering on the trees. The volume of sound suggested the roar of lions. He felt a pang when he aimed his gun at one of the foremost, but pangs of a more effective sort were experienced when his native boy and he tried to retrieve the monkey, which had fallen into a bees' nest the size of a bushel basket.

Hunted With Headlight.

Countless bats were found. In their cave life they separated into species, and the sexes kept by themselves, specimens in each mass being all of one sex. They hung in clusters of several hundred individuals. Some of the largest had a wing expanse of twenty-six inches. As the masses hung together they bore close resemblance to the stalactites with which the walls and domed ceilings of the caves were covered. Many of the big bats were strong, muscular and always ready to bite.

The most efficient method of hunting the jungle was by means of a headlight at night, when the light was reflected in the eyes of the animal, which shone like red, green or blue fire. The animal could see nothing except the light and thus was easily shot.

Good flashlight pictures of small mammals were obtained by setting out cameras for them. Apparatus was placed along runways and watercourses where the animals were apt to pass. It consisted of a mechanism to fire a magnesium flash and to trip the shutter, and it was set off by a thread attached to bait. When the animal pulled the bait it thus fired the flash.

"Spotted Rabbits."

One specimen illustrated in the report is of a paca, a large rodent, exceeding in size the capybara. The natives call it "spotted rabbit." Its habits are nocturnal. It was flushed while selling a mango that had been placed as bait. Opossums and many species of rodents were flushed in the same way. The trip yielded well in small mammals, but not in large ones. Opossums actually proved obstacles to flashlight work owing to their abundance and their omnivorous appetite. Mr. Anthony says that probably 75 per cent of the flashes fired were sprung by opossums who found and seized the bait shortly after dusk, before better game was moving. The trip yielded for the museum, however, many specimens not heretofore represented.

Trips for the collection of specimens will become increasingly difficult for visitors owing to changing conditions in the zone areas and also in respect to unofficial visitors to the adherence to the policy to maintain the isthmus as a game preserve, a policy adopted by Colonel Goethals during the engineering work, which he has continued as civil governor. Exception to the laws against shooting game outside a short open season will be made only in favor of occasional zoological expeditions sent out for scientific purposes.

COIN MONEY FOR CUBANS.

Nearly Five Millions Will Be Made at Philadelphia Mint.

One million dollars in gold, $2,500,000 in silver and $1,000,000 in nickel is the amount of currency to be coined at the United States mint in Philadelphia for the Cuban government.

The law for the coinage of Cuban currency was approved Oct. 26, 1914, and makes the national currency of Cuba and that of the United States the only legal tender for the payment of an obligation while the law is in force.

The denominations specified in the law call for gold coins of $20, $16, $5, $4, $2 and $1; also silver coins of $1, 40 cents, 20 cents and 10 cents. The nickel coins will be 1 cent, 2 cents and 5 cents.

Repatee at the Card Club.

A BIRD IN THE HAND.

If we go to the city and buy food or clothing we pay cash down. If we do not pay cash we pay higher prices, because there is always a charge for credit. This is all right; it is sound business. But turn about is fair pay as well as fair play.

If city people come to us and buy food or products out of which clothing is made there is any good reason why they should not pay cash down? The farmers who collect before they ship have bank accounts. Those who work on credit may have some profit, but they have more experience.

Eliminating the middleman is good, but eliminating the hiatus between the crop and the cash is better.—Country Gentleman.

THE COUNTY ADVISER.

Success of an Agricultural Movement Which Has Spread in Many States.

The past three years has seen the beginning and the development of the county farm bureau movement in the United States. Ever since the foundation of agricultural colleges and the United States department of agriculture there has been a constantly increasing desire on the part of all classes of people interested to get before the country as a whole the best agricultural information obtainable in a concrete way.

At this time there are 313 counties in the United States, each organized with a paid county agent or adviser at the head of it. His work embraces silos, crops, live stock, cultural and tillage methods, better roads and is now found to be reaching out into the schools where agriculture is taught and introducing it into those where it is not taught, and into the question of markets and credits. In short, the movement has become an agricultural commercial club for each county to broaden its scope in every way.

Sixteen states in the Union, Indiana, Wisconsin, New York, Minnesota, Michigan, North Dakota, New Jersey, Ohio, Utah, Oregon, Washington, Vermont, Colorado, Idaho, Montana and Illinois, have already consented to let the county supervisors appropriate money for the use of the county farm bureau or development association.

The county adviser is always on the job. He not only visits the different farms in his county during the spring, summer and fall, but gives lectures during the winter and answers all letters sent him. He brings to the county in concrete shape all the scientific facts that have so long been bottled up in our colleges and experiment stations, which have by no means been put to general use. Through the local clubs every one finds out how the best farmers of each community are conducting such phases of their work, and consequently there is a tremendous tendency to adopt these good ways by committees, and thus great results soon become apparent.

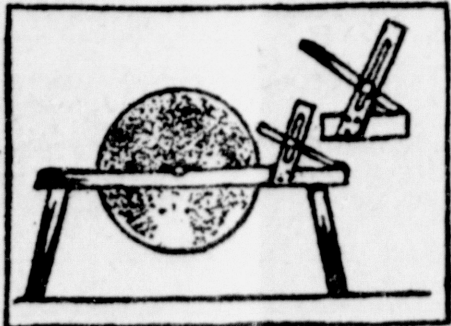

Strange as it may seem, the smallest part of the county farm agent's work is advisory. The farmers resent the adviser idea, and justly. No class of people likes to be the subject of definite uplift work, but the first problems to be solved in rural communities are those of organization and team work.

For instance, it requires the co-operation of a neighborhood to adopt single varieties of grain and standardize the product of the community so that it can be offered in sufficient quantity to demand better prices. Hog cholera cannot be eradicated unless the community works together in reporting the disease so that serum may be promptly administered, and such sanitary precautions taken as are necessary to prevent it from spreading. One man cannot drag the roads continually. An individual farmer can hardly be expected to keep his place free from weeds if his neighbors allow the same weeds to mature just across the fence. Smut cannot be eradicated from one farm if winds from surrounding fields blow across that place, carrying the disease spores.

Hold Tools on Grindstone.

When grinding tools by simply holding them with the hands against the stone frequent changes of angle will cause much extra labor and result in a poor job. The Scientific American illustrates a simple device to hold tools at a constant angle while grinding, which can easily be made and attached to the grinding stone as follows:

Screw on each side of the base of the grinding stone a wooden arm as pictured in the drawing. These arms should be slotted. A board a little larger than the ordinary plane iron is cut and bored with a one-fourth inch hole, running from edge to edge. The board is fastened to the grindstone with a hinge.

A bolt is put through the slots in the arms and the hole in the board. The bolt may be tightened up to hold the board at any desired adjustment. The tool to be sharpened is placed on the board and held firmly. This arrangement will allow tools to be set at any cutting angle.

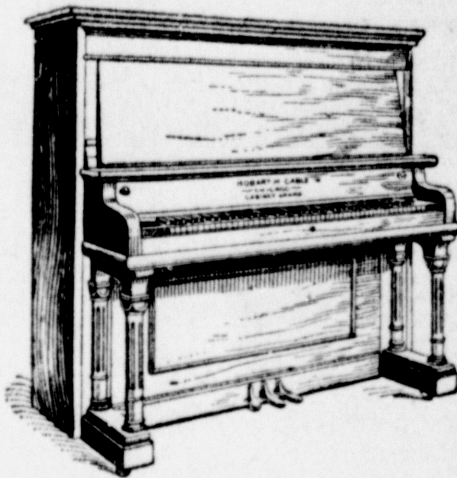

sweetly, "but would you mind telling me whether you were a bookkeeper or a teacher before you were married?" "Neither," was the reply. "I was merely educated." — Kansas City Times.

DON'T NEGLECT That Sale Advertising

You are going to have a sale, you say, that should amount to a good bit over $1000 if you get good prices.

To get good prices you must have the bidders—the people with money. Those are the people who read the news papers.

They read the sale advertising to see where they may buy what they want. Your neighbors all know what you have to sell. It is the man who lives five miles away that will look to the paper to find what you offer; and two times out of three he the best bidder.

Don't let him miss seeing your ad. It may cost $1.00 or so more to advertise thoroughly than it would to do it "half-way," but if that $1.00 gets you a single bidder the advertisement will pay for itself.

Experience here has taught us that it pays.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Warrington, an American adventurer, and James, his servant, with a parrot, the bird known as Parrot & Co., travel along the road to the landing, bound for Rangoon to cash a draft for $50,000 rupees.

CHAPTER II.—Elsa Chetwood, rich American girl tourist, sees Warrington come aboard the boat at the landing and, amazed at his likeness to her fiancé, Arthur Ellison, asks the parrot to introduce her. Conservative English passengers are shocked at her breach of the conventionalities.

CHAPTER III.—The parrot tells Elsa that Warrington, the outcast adventurer, has beaten a syndicate and sold his oil claims for $250,000. Warrington puts Rajah, the parrot, through his tricks for Elsa and warns her against acquaintance with unknown adventurers—himself, in fact.

CHAPTER IV.—Warrington and Elsa pass two golden days together on the river. Martha, Elsa's companion, warns her that there is gossip.

CHAPTER V.—In Rangoon Warrington banks his draft, pays old debts, and while settling with James in his old lodgings overhears and interferes in a row over cards in the next room.

CHAPTER VI.—Warrington finds that the row in the next room is caused by an enemy, Newell Craig, and threatens to shoot him unless he leaves town. Elsa, who has been with Martha, is shocked by Craig and stabs him with a hatpin. Warrington bids Elsa good-bye. She does not tell him that she is to sail on the same ship for Singapore.

CHAPTER VII.—Martha writes to Arthur Ellison of the rapidly growing friendship between Elsa and the outcast American adventurer. Warrington discovers Elsa on the Singapore steamer and realizes his hopeless love and his duty to protect her against himself. Elsa tells him of her engagement.

CHAPTER VIII.—Warrington avoids Elsa, who thinks he may be ill and makes inquiries, regardless of the misinterpretation of her concern. Craig is aboard, is warned by Warrington, and calls him Rajah, so letting him know that his chivalry and loyalty of ten years before have gone for nothing.

CHAPTER IX.—Warrington ceases to avoid Elsa. Craig starts an evil gossip. Elsa tells Warrington of the hatpin incident and he hunts up Craig, on murder bent, only to find him stretched out drunk on deck.

CHAPTER X.—Warrington turns the hose on Craig. He tells Elsa that he is a man under a cloud and to be avoided, but Elsa refuses. She sees the cut direct from social passengers.

CHAPTER XI.—At Penang Mallow, who drove Warrington from his plantation when he learned his story, comes aboard. Warrington tells Elsa that Mallow and Craig both will tell her that he spent money that did not belong to him over the gambling table to Craig, and asks her not to speak to him again.

CHAPTER XII.—Mallow baits Craig, who keeps his temper. At Singapore Elsa calls on her father's old friend the American consul general. Mallow also calls and relates the steamer gossip about Elsa.

CHAPTER XIII.

After Ten Years.

The consul general saw before him an exquisite, as the ancient phrase goes, backed by no indifferent breed of manhood. He believed that here was a brief respite (as between acts) in which the little hypocrisies could be laid aside. The pleasant smile on his high-bred face was all his own. "And what may I do for you, sir?"

"I Meant No Harm."

He expected to be presented with letters of introduction, and to while away a half hour in the agreeable discussion of mutual acquaintance.

"I should like a few minutes' private talk with you," began the well-dressed stranger. "May I close the door?" The consul general, with a sense of disappointment, nodded. The blond man returned and sat down. "I don't know how to begin, but I want you to copy this cablegram and send it under your own name. Here it is; read it."

So singular a request filled the consul general with astonishment. Rather mechanically he accepted the slip of paper, adjusted his glasses, and read—

"The Andes Construction company, New York. A former employee of yours wishes to make a restitution of $500, with interest to date. He dares not give his name to me, but he wishes to learn if this belated restitution will lift the ban against his coming to America and resuming his citizenship. Reply collect."

"This is an extraordinary request to make to me, sir."

"Could I possibly offer that to the cable operator? Without name or address? No; I could not do it without being subjected to a thousand questions, none of which I should care to answer. So I came to you. Passing through your hands, no one will question it. Will you do this favor for a poor unfortunate devil?"

Oddly enough, the other could not get away from his original impression. The clothes, the way the man wore them, the clarity of his eyes, the abundant health that was expressed by the tone of the skin, derided such a possibility as the cablegram made manifest.

He forced the smile back to his lips. "Are you sure you're not hoaxing me?"

"No. I am the victim of the hoax," enigmatically. "If one may call the quirk of fate by the name of hoax," the stranger added. "Will you send it?"

The years he had spent in the consular service had never brought before him a situation of this order. He did not know exactly what to do. He looked out of the window, into the hotel court, at the sky which presently would become overcast with the daily rain clouds. By and by he remembered the man waiting patiently at his elbow.

"What is your name?"

"I'd rather not give that until I hear from New York. I am known out here by the name of Warrington."

Warrington. The puzzlement vanished from the older man's face, and his eyes became alert, renewing from another angle their investigation of the stranger. Warrington. So this was the man? He could understand now. Who could blame a girl for making a mistake when he, a seasoned veteran, had been beguiled by the outward appearance of the man? Mallow was right. He was a handsome beggar.

"I promise to send this upon one condition."

"I accept without question," readily.

"It is that you must keep away from Elsa Chetwood, now and hereafter. You made her acquaintance under false pretenses."

"I deny that. Not under false pretenses." How quickly things went about! "Let me tell you how I met her."

The consul general listened; he listened with wonder and interest, and more, with conviction that the young man had been perfectly honest. But the knowledge only added to his growing alarm. It would not be difficult for such a man to win the regard of any young woman.

"And you told her what you had done?"

"Yes."

"Your first misstep?" touching the cablegram.

"My first and only misstep. I was a careless, happy-go-lucky young fool." The sky outside also had attraction for Warrington. A thousand times a fool! "How long ago did this happen?"

"Ten years this coming April."

"And now, after all this time, you wish to go back?"

"I have wished to go back many times, but never had money enough. I have plenty now. Oh, I made it honestly," smiling. "In oil, at Penang. Here's a cutting from a Rangoon paper."

The other read it carefully. It was romance, romance such as he liked to read in his books, but which was mighty bewildering to have at his elbow in actuality. What a life the man must have led! And here he was, with no more evidence of the conflict than might be discerned in the manliness of his face and the breadth and depth of his shoulders. He dropped the cutting, impatiently.

"Don't you believe it?"

"Believe it? Oh, this? Yes," answered the consul general. "What I cannot believe is that I am awake. I cannot quite make two and two equal four. I cannot. . . Well, you do not look like a man who would rob his employer of eight thousand dollars."

"Parrot & Co. It's odd, but I recollect that title. You were at Udapur during the plague."

Warrington brightened. "So that's got about? I happened to be there, working on the prince's railway."

"I will send the cable at once. You will doubtless hear from New York in the morning. But you must not see Miss Chetwood again."

"You will let me bid her good-bye? I admire and respect her more than any other woman. She does not know it, for as yet her soul is asleep; but she is one of those few women God put on earth for the courage and comfort of man. Only to say good-bye to her. Here in this office, if you wish."

"I agree to that."

"Thank you again," Warrington rose.

"I am genuinely sorry for you. If they say no, what will you do?"

"Go back just the same. I have another debt to cancel."

"Call in the morning. I'll let you know what the charges are."

"I forgot. Here are twenty pounds. You can return the balance when I call. I am very grateful."

"By the way, there is a man here by the name of Mallow," began the consul general.

"Yes," interrupted Warrington, with a smile which was grim and cruel. "I expect to call upon him. He owes me something like fifty pounds, and I am going to collect it." Then he went out.

The consul general dropped Mallow's perfectly into the wastebasket and sighed his pipe. Once more he read the cablegram.

"It is, Elsa, dear. But James is right."

"You'll get your balance," said the guardian, "when you reach home. When's the wedding?"

"I'm not sure that I'm going to be married," Elsa twirled the sunshade.

"I am not a bad man at heart," he mused, "but I liked the young man's expression when I mentioned that bully Mallow."

He joined his family at five. He waved aside tea, and called for a lemon-squash.

"Elsa, I am going to give you a lecture."

"Didn't I tell you?" cried Elsa to the wife. "I felt in my bones that he was going to say this very thing." She turned to her old-time friend. "Go on; lecture me."

"In the first place, you are too kind-hearted."

"That will be news to my friends. They say I have a heart of ice."

"And what you think is independence of spirit is sometimes indiscretion."

"Oh," said Elsa, becoming serious. "A man came into my office today. He is a rich copra grower from Penang. He spoke of you. You passed him on going out. If I had been twenty years younger I'd have punched his ugly head. His name is Mallow, and he's not a savory chap."

Elsa's cheeks burned. She never would forget the look in that man's eyes. The look might have been in other men's eyes, but conventionality had always veiled it; she had never seen it before.

"Go on," but her voice was unsteady.

"Somewhere along the Irrawaddy you made the acquaintance of a young man who calls himself Warrington, familiarly known as Parrot & Co. I'll be generous. Not one woman in a thousand would have declined to accept the attentions of such a man. He is cultivated, undeniably good looking, a strong man, mentally and physically."

Elsa's expression was now enigmatical.

"There's not much veneer to him. He fooled me unintentionally. He was quite evidently, born a gentleman, of a race of gentlemen. His is not an isolated case. One misstep, and the road to the devil."

The consul general's wife sent a startled glance at Elsa, who spun her sunshade to lighten the tension of her nerves.

"He confessed frankly to me this morning that he is a fugitive from justice. He wishes to return to America. He recounted the circumstances of your meeting."

"Uncle Jim, I have traveled pretty much over this world, and I never met a gentleman if Warrington is not one." There was unconscious belligerency in her tone.

"Ah, there's the difficulty which women will never be made to understand. Every man can, at one time or another, put himself upon his good behavior. Underneath he may be a fine rascal."

"Not this one," smiling. "He warned me against himself a dozen times, but that served to make me stubborn. The fault of my conduct," acidly, "was not in making this pariah's acquaintance. It lies in the fact that I had nothing to do with the other passengers, from choice. That is where I was indiscreet. But why should I put myself out to gain the good wishes of people for whom I have no liking; people I shall probably never see again when I leave this port?"

"You forget that some of them will be your fellow passengers all the way to San Francisco. My child, you know as well as I do that there are some laws which the Archangel Michael would have to obey, did he wish to inhabit this earth for a while."

"Poor Michael! And if you do not obey these laws, people talk."

"Exactly. There are two sets of man-made laws. One governs the conduct of men and the other the conduct of women."

"And a man may break any one of these laws. I consider it horribly unfair."

"So it is. But if you wish to live in peace, you must submit."

"Peace at that price I have no wish for. This man Mallow lives within the pale of law; the other man is outside of it. Yet, of the two, which would you be quickest to trust?"

The consul general laughed. "Now you are appealing not to my knowledge of the world but to my instinct."

"Thanks."

"Is there any reason why you should defend Mr. Warrington, as he calls himself?"

The consul general's wife desperately tried to catch her husband's eye. But either he did not see the glance or he purposely ignored it.

"In defending Mr. Warrington I am defending myself. My dear friend," Elsa went on, letting warmth come into her voice once more, "my sympathy went out to that man. He looked so lonely. Did you notice his eyes? Can a man look at you the way he does and be bad?"

"I have seen Mallow dozens of times. I know him to be a scoundrel of sorts; but I doubt if bald sunlight could make him blink. Liars have first to overcome the flickering and wavering of the eyes."

"He said almost the same thing. Would he say that if he were a liar?"

"I haven't accused him of being that. Indeed, he struck me as a truthful young man. By the way, what is the name of the firm your father founded?"

"The Andes Construction company. Do you think we could find him something to do there?" eagerly. "He builds bridges."

"I shouldn't advise that. But we have gone astray. You ought not to see him again."

"It is a hateful world!" Elsa appealed to the wife.

read the cablegram. The Andes Construction company. What a twist, what an absurd kink in the skein! Nearly all of Elsa's wealth lay bound up in this enormous business which General Chetwood had founded thirty odd years before. And neither of them knew!

"I am not a bad man at heart," he mused, "but I liked the young man's expression when I mentioned that bully Mallow."

He joined his family at five. He waved aside tea, and called for a lemon-squash.

again. "Oh, bother with it all! Dinner at eight, in the big dining room."

"Yes. But the introductions will be made on the cafe veranda. These people out here have gone mad over cock-tails. And look your best, Elsa. I want them to see a real American girl tonight. I'll have some roses sent up to you."

Elsa had not the heart to tell him that all interest in his dinner had suddenly gone from her mind; that even the confusion of the colonel no longer appealed to her bitter malice. She knew that she was going to be bored and miserable.

When she was gone, the consul general's wife said: "Poor girl!"

Her husband looked across the room interestedly. "Why do you say that?"

"I am a woman."

"That phrase is the City of Refuge. All women fly to it when confronted by something they do not understand."

"Oh, but I do understand. And that's the pity of it."

UNCLE SAM'S NAVAL EXPERT.

One Who Does Nothing But Play With Toy Battleships.

In a long, low building down near the river in Washington there is a man who plays with toy ships on a toy ocean. And as a result of his play he can foretell exactly how the big battleships of the United States navy will behave in a storm at sea, and he can predict to a nicety how much horsepower will be needed to drive the great transatlantic liners laden with their passengers and freight. He does this before even the keels of the ships have been laid down.

He is a naval constructor in the United States navy, and the toy ocean on which he works is the United States experimental model basin. The sheet of water in the basin is 500 feet long and fifty feet wide, with a maximum depth of fourteen feet.

But in this limited space the naval expert, working with a wave maker, a dynamometer, a towing bridge and other apparatus, can solve all the mechanical problems connected with the construction of a ship, its probable roll when struck by giant waves and the horsepower needed in its tremendous engines to drive it through the water. He works with wooden models twenty feet long. Some of them weigh 1,000 pounds, none of them more than 2,000. The other countries of the world use paraffine models, but he works entirely with the miniature-ships of wood.

The drawings and plans of the battleships to be built by Uncle Sam are turned over to the constructor by the navy department's bureau of construction and repair. In a little shop adjoining the building which covers the model basin the models are made and painted. Bags of shot, each weighing twenty-five pounds, are kept on hand to bring the model up to the corresponding weight of the big ship. The final tests are made in the "toy ocean" near by.—Popular Magazine.

Sugar From the Bamboo.

The natives of India many centuries ago, discovered that a sweet substance could be got from the bamboo, and Theophrastus refers to it as "honey which is from bamboos." Another writer calls it Indian salt. Seneca observes, "There is found among the Indians a honey contained in the reed," and Pliny tells us "Arabia produces a sugar, but that of India is more renowned."

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because it dandruff so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

JOHN D., JR., KICKS ABOUT GUARD

Wants Police Withdrawn From Hearing Room.

SAYS HE'S IN NO DANGER

Old King's Son Talks to "Mother" Jones, the Aged Strike Leader, and Invites Her to Visit Him.

New York, Jan. 27.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., invited "Mother Jones," the aged strike leader in the Colorado coal fields, to visit him and place before him all information as to the strike situation there. The invitation was accepted.

The invitation was extended by Mr. Rockefeller as he entered the room in the New York city hall, where the federal commission on industrial relations is conducting its inquiry into the philanthropic foundations and the cause of industrial unrest.

As he walked from the door to the witness stand he saw "Mother" Jones sitting among the spectators. He stepped to her side and shook hands.

"I wish you would come to see me and give me any information you have on the Colorado situation," he said. "Mother" Jones was visibly surprised. "That's very nice of you," she said. "I have always said that you could know but little of the condition of the workers in Colorado."

Mr. Rockefeller notified his staff he wanted them to withdraw the detectives who have been guarding him. He was quoted as saying: "This thing of being hurried out of side doors to avoid crowds and being followed around by a lot of detectives must stop. It makes me look ridiculous. I am in no more danger than any other witness who has testified. The police should confine their activities to maintaining order in the room."

After Mr. Rockefeller took the stand Chairman Walsh read a letter written by Mr. Welborn, president of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, to Starr J. Murphy, of the personal staff of John D. Rockefeller, Sr. In the letter Mr. Welborn said a clergyman at Sunset had made remarks detrimental to the company and that it had been suggested that the clergyman be removed.

As a citizen, Mr. Rockefeller said he believed all clergymen should be free to say what they please. It was brought out that the clergyman in question had been severe in his criticism of the company in connection with the conflicts at Ludlow.

"Did you know that Jefferson Farr is a sheriff, and that for fifteen years your company has used its influence to elect him?" asked Mr. Walsh. "Did you know that just before the strike he swore in 300 men as deputies and was told that the Colorado Fuel and Iron company would furnish them with arms and pay them?"

Mr. Rockefeller said that he knew nothing about that. "As a citizen, I say that anything which interferes with the operations of a democratic form of government should not be tolerated," he added.

"What would you do to a corporation officer who admitted that he had used money and influence in an election?" the chairman asked. "I would do my utmost to have him separated from the corporation," the witness replied. "I would not care to be associated in business with such a dishonest man."

Mr. Rockefeller said that he was not aware that for twenty-three years no verdict had been found against the Colorado Fuel and Iron company for the injury to or death of a workman.

Mr. Walsh asked Mr. Rockefeller whether he thought it legal and right for corporations to use a "black list." Witness said he believed a corporation might have its own list of "undesirables," but that he did not believe the list should be sent to any other companies.

He testified that he favored collective bargaining on the part of the employees. The position of the worker would be much stronger under such conditions, witness agreed.

Mr. Walsh said he had figured out that actually Mr. Rockefeller, Sr., had received more than $9,000,000 income from the Colorado Fuel and Iron company. Mr. Walsh said Mr. Welborn had testified that there were 15,000 employees in the company, and that in twelve years they had received $92,000,000 in salary. "Do you think it is fair that 15,000 men should receive all that, only ten times the amount your father has received, he or his representatives having been on the property for ten years?"

Mr. Rockefeller said he considered capital was entitled to a fair return; that it had not received it in Colorado, and that he thought the employees had been well paid.

BRITISH LOSSES IN NAVAL FIGHT

German Guns Disabled Two Warships.

OTHERS ARE NOT DAMAGED

English Losses Were 141 Killed and 19 Wounded—Berlin Claims Three British Ships Were Sunk.

London, Jan. 27.—It was officially announced that the British battle cruiser Lion and the British torpedo boat destroyer Meteor were disabled in Sunday's naval battle in the North sea and were towed into port.

All of the British ships engaged in the combat, the official statement says, returned safely to port.

The announcement was made by the secretary of the admiralty, whose statement said:

"All the British ships and torpedo boat destroyers engaged in Sunday's action have returned in safety to port."

"The Lion, which had some of her forward compartment flooded by shells below the water line, was taken in tow by the cruiser Indomitable. The destroyer Meteor, which was also disabled, was taken in tow by the destroyer Liberty. Both vessels were guarded by strong escorts of destroyers. Repairs to both vessels can be speedily made."

"The total number of casualties among the officers and men reported to the admiralty is:

"On the Lion, seventeen men were wounded; on the Tiger, one officer and nine men were killed and three officers and eight men wounded; on the Meteor, four men were killed and one man wounded."

It is not believed that any other casualty occurred, but if so they will be immediately published.

As soon as Vice Admiral Beatty's report is received a fuller account will be given.

Two hundred survivors of the German cruiser Blucher, sunk in the North sea Sunday by British warships, have been landed. They include a few petty officers.

Fifty additional survivors were landed from two British torpedo boat destroyers at Leith, near Edinburgh. Dispatches from there say a column of the Red Cross corps was at the dock with ambulances to receive twenty-three men who had been wounded in the fight.

One of the wounded German died while on the way to port, but the body was landed. Several of the wounded were terribly injured. The prisoner of war were taken in automobiles to Edinburgh Castle.

Three British Ships Sunk, Says Berlin.
Berlin, Jan. 27.—Additional details of the sinking of a British battle cruiser in the naval battle Sunday in the North sea, west of Heligoland, which is claimed by the Germans, is given in a statement issued in Berlin. The statement follows:

"According to well informed German sources this cruiser suffered heavily from the fire of our cannon and was then sunk by a German torpedo boat by two well directed shots. The sinking was observed by a German airship, which followed the battle closely."

"Two English torpedo boats were also sunk. The airship also observed the serious damage of other English ships."

JAPAN'S DEMANDS JOLT CHINA

Pekin Asked For Extensive Political and Territorial Grants.

Pekin, Jan. 27.—Certain political and territorial demands which Japan has made upon China, following the Japanese occupation of Kiao-Chau, have become known in Peking, and their extent is disquieting to Chinese officials.

These demands, twenty-one in number, include: First, that China turn over to Japan all existing German and Austrian concessions; second, that China pledge herself not to give concessions, in the future, to any country except Japan; third, permission to build a special territorial railroad, and, fourth, mining privileges in the provinces of Shantung and Fukien, in Manchuria, in eastern Mongolia and in the Yangtze valley.

If these demands were granted, it is felt that it would be to the detriment of the treaty rights of other nations. The government has not replied to the note.

The Scrap Book

How the Debt Was Collected.

In the home of a certain influential family they arose one morning to find that no breakfast had been prepared, even the kitchen fire had not been lighted. Upon investigation the cook was discovered peacefully reclining in bed.

"Are you ill?" inquired the mistress.

"Not at all. I feel quite well," was the surprising response, but still no persuasion would induce her to arise.

After a time the doctor was sent for. He put to her his usual questions, but the girl insisted "I won't stir until they pay."

"If, as you say, you are not ill," then tell me in confidence why you won't get up and go to work."

"Well," said the girl resolutely, "these people owe me $25, and I won't stir until they pay it."

"Do you think you'll get it quicker by staying in bed?" asked the doctor.

"I most certainly do," she replied, with a gleam of the eye that expressed determination to fight it out on that line if it took all summer.

The doctor, turning to go, said: "Roll over and stay there. That's the only way you'll get it. They owe me $80."

Settled a Great Question.

When Thomas H. Benton was in the house of representatives he was of the opinion that the 3d day of March and consequently the congressional term ended at midnight of that day instead of at noon on the 4th, as unbroken usage had fixed it. So on the last morning he sat with his hat on, talked loudly, loafed about the floor and finally refused to vote or answer to his name when the roll was called. At last the speaker, the Hon. James L. Orr of South Carolina, picked him up and put an end to these legislative larks.

"No, sir; no, sir; no, sir," shouted the venerable Missourian. "I will not vote. I have no right to vote. This is no house, and I am not a member of it."

"Then, sir," said Speaker Orr like a flash, with his sweetest manner, "if the gentleman is not a member of this house the sergeant at arms will please put him out."

And so this vast constitutional question settled itself.

Billboard Irony.
A saving quality through Thomas Wentworth Higginson's life, writes Mrs. Mary Thacher Higginson in her biography of Mr. Higginson, was his keen sense of the ludicrous. He once wrote to his Aunt Nancy:

Worcester, June 29, 1858.
I spoke in Springfield on Sunday to the Spiritualists. My name was paraded in the streets in the largest capitals I ever had as the Rev. T. W. H., "eminent clergyman, popular author (he and eloquent lecturer)." Directly over it were the remains of a theatrical handbill in large letters "The Fool of the Family."

The Reason.

Mr. Harold Begbie quotes in "The Happy Irish" an amusing story that he got from the doctor of a little town that he visited in the course of his tour of Ireland:

"I was rung up pretty late one night by a peasant from an outlying village, fifteen miles away. It was in the days before I had a car. The wind was blowing horribly, the rain was sweeping cold. The peasant asked me rather shamefacedly if I would come and see his mother. I invited him to come in. 'Patrick,' I said to him, 'your mother is a very old woman.'"

"I know that, doctor," he admitted. "She's over eighty, Patrick."

"She's all that, doctor."

"And nothing that I could do tonight would be of the smallest use to her."

"Sure, doctor," said he. "I know very well it's the truth you are telling me; but me poor mother, do you see, would have me come and fetch you because she does not want to die a natural death."

The Kitchen GUPBOARD

LEMON PIES.

EVERYBODY likes lemon pie. It is, in the form of lemon meringue, a pastry that may be served to any company and with any bill of fare. Lemons should in winter be used often in the making of desserts.

Delicious, but Simple.

Lemon Cream Pie.—Take the juice and grated rind of one lemon, one cupful of sugar, the yolks of two eggs and two teaspoonfuls of flour and mix together. Pour over these a cupful of boiling water. Set the dish containing the mixture on the range and boil until well cooked. Make a pie with an undercrust only, and after it is baked add a frosting made of the beaten whites of the eggs and two tablespoonfuls of white sugar. Spread the frosting evenly over the pie and place in the oven until it is slightly brown.

Covered With Crossbars.

French Lemon Pie.—Take three apples; pare, core and slice. Then boil with three cupfuls of water and one and one-half cupfuls of granulated sugar. Moisten three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with water and stir into the boiling apple syrup. When it thickens remove from the fire, and when cool add four well beaten eggs, the grated rind of one lemon and the juice of two, stirring all together. Strain through a colander. Line deep pie plates with crust, fill with the mixture, put crossbars of crust over the top and bake in a moderate oven.

Tempting Pastry.

Lemon Meringue Pie.—Take perforated tin pie plates, line with puff paste and bake in a quick oven. Put one cupful of boiling water and one cupful of sugar in a saucepan, add two level tablespoonfuls of cornstarch made smooth in a little cold water and cook five minutes. Then add the grated yellow rind of half a lemon and the juice of a whole one and the well beaten yolks of two eggs. Cook one minute,

Famous Products of Cyprus.

Cyprus gave its name to the metal copper. For it was from this island that the Romans got their supplies of the metal, which they knew as "Cyprium aes," or, for short, "Cyprium," in Latin "cuprum." Another famous product of the island was a tree—not the cypress, but the "cypripis," from which a valuable oil was made. But it is better worth remembering as "gopher," the Hebrew name of the wood of which Noah's ark was built.—London Chronicle.

Advocates Larger Use of Lemon.

America is the proud grower of the finest lemons in the world. One has but to see the great shipments of this fruit arriving daily from California to appreciate this fact fully. The amount of these shipments has made prices lower than usual, so lemons are economical now as well as excellent in quality. Housewives should and will use more lemons than they do when they know all the facts, according to domestic science experts. The lemon, in other words, should be their right-hand fruit.—New York Telegraph.

Revised the Petition.

Instead of forever praying for things that would be of doubtful benefit to us, now much better it would be to repeat, from day to day, this simple sentence of gratitude: "Thank you, God, that we can help those who are down."—Toledo Blade.

Medical Advertising SCHOOL TEACHING EXHAUSTING WORK

Miss Rosa M. Keller's Struggle to Keep Up—How Vinol Helped to Ward Off Nervous Breakdown.

Alburtis, Pa.—"I am a teacher in the public schools and I got into a very nervous, run-down condition. I could not sleep and had no appetite. I was tired all the time."

"My sister told me how Vinol had built up her nephew and asked me to try it. I did so, and within a week after taking Vinol my appetite improved and I could sleep all right and now I feel well and strong."

"Vinol is certainly a fine medicine and even the doctors say it is a good tonic."—ROSA M. KELLER, Alburtis, Pa.

The reason Vinol restored Miss Keller to her normal health was because in a natural manner it sharpened her appetite, aided digestion, strengthened her nerves, and as a result brought the refreshing sleep she needed.

If there is anyone in this vicinity, run-down, weak, nervous, worn out and who cannot sleep, we ask you to try Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, on our guarantee to build you up and make you feel better, eat better, sleep better, or return your money.

G. W. WEAVER & SON

Two Kinds of Sovereigns

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Aaron Skinner, an American, traveling abroad, found himself one day at a little inn in the dukedom of Hesse-Meiningen. It was the fall of the year, and Skinner was a Nimrod.

"Any shooting about here?" he asked of the landlord.

"A little, herr—that is, the preserves of the grand duke are near here, and sometimes the birds fly out into the woods near by. One can occasionally pick off a brace that have strayed."

"Can you lend me a fowling piece?"

"Certainly, herr."

The landlord got the gun and appurtenances and handed them to the American, saying:

"Be careful, herr, not to trespass on the grand duke's grounds, for if caught there you would be arrested for poaching, and it might go hard with you."

Skinner went forth to pick up "a few crumbs from the rich man's table." One may stray a long way after game without knowing it, and he had been wandering an hour without realizing how far he had gone or how many walls or fences he had passed over when suddenly, having crawled under a rusty wire netting, he found himself amid a plentiful supply of pheasants. He had brought one down and was picking it up when, hearing a footstep, he looked around and saw a man with a gun in his hand looking at him.

"A good shot," remarked the other.

"Oh, that's nothing. I learned to shoot in America, where we still have some wild game left. That's shooting. This is merely execution."

"Indeed! How do you happen to be executing birds here?"

"I am a tourist, stopping at the inn. The landlord told me I might happen to get a few birds in this wood that have flown out of the grand duke's preserve. The duke seems to be losing a good many hereabout."

"He can spare them; he has more than he could shoot in a lifetime. So you are an American?"

"I am."

"And every American is a sovereign, I hear."

"He thinks he is."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Didn't you know that we have kings and queens in America?"

"No; how do you make that out?"

"An American king is the political boss controlling the region in which he lives."

"And the queen?"

"Our queens are our wives and sweethearts. The boss makes a man believe he has a lot to say about the government, and the wives and sweethearts make us think we are ruling them with undisputed sway."

"And you think that the sovereignty of the boss is preferable to that of a king?"

"Decidedly. He doesn't have a royal family to support."

"But he bleeds you through jobs."

"Certainly, but he can't plunge us into a war whenever he likes, which is far more expensive."

The man smiled. "You have a pungent way of putting things, my friend. I confess you entertain me. I have a shack near here. I would be pleased to have you take luncheon with me."

"With pleasure."

Stuffing the bird he had shot into his game bag he went with the man through the wood till he came to a sumptuous lodge, about which persons in gorgeous livery were moving. When the huntsmen came up to them they saluted respectfully, and the man told one of them to take the guest to a room for a toilet. When the visitor was ready the two sat down to luncheon. The principal dish served was a brace of pheasants.

"I presume these birds originally belonged to the grand duke," remarked Skinner.

"They did."

"What kind of a chap is he?"

"He's not a bad fellow. Suppose I were to go to America. Do you suppose I could become one of your boss kings?"

"I don't think it would pay you to be one of our princes of the blood. They usually originate, like the oyster, on a muddy bottom and work up to a surface of slime."

"But don't you object to being governed by such persons?"

"Oh, no. At least nobody does except the reformers."

"Who are the reformers?"

"They are the persons who are trying to get into the bosses' places."

"But haven't you any real reformers in America?"

"Not ordinarily. The people haven't time for reform; we're too busy. Occasionally on a big job, like breaking up swindling places, races, for instance, we all butt against it together. But we don't follow it up. We're rich. We can afford to stand to be robbed."

"Then you don't think it would pay me to give up my job here and go to America as one of the rulers there?"

"What is your job?"

"Grand Duke of Hesse-Meiningen."

Skinner was raising a glass of wine to his lips when this announcement was made. He paused and looked at his entertainer.

"And I was shooting in your preserves?"

"Yes. You had doubtless got into them unintentionally, but you were quite welcome."

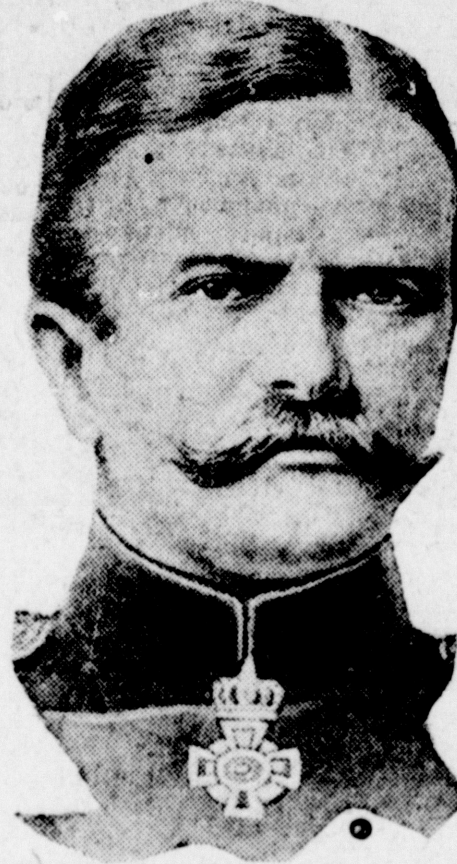

"No," said Skinner after some thought. "It wouldn't pay you, and it wouldn't pay us."

Expert Taxidermy.

In the art of modern taxidermy the old system of simply "stuffing" the skins of animals has been done away with and a standard method of accurate lifelike modeling established. Over a carefully made plaster cast of

SNAPSHOTS AT NOTABLE PERSONS

General August von Mackensen, German Leader.

General August von Mackensen, who commanded the Ninth army, which led the advance of the German forces against the Russians defending Warsaw, is known as the hero of Lovicz. For his success in capturing that strategic point Kaiser Wilhelm conferred on General von Mackensen the Order of Merit. In his telegram of commendation the kaiser said:

"The Ninth army, under your safe and tested leadership, has again fought with unrivaled brilliancy in a hard but successful battle. Your achievements in the past days will stand in history as shining examples of fortitude, endurance and valor."

"Communicate this to your splendid troops with my imperial thanks, to which I wish to give tangible form by conferring upon you the Order of Merit. God be with you and our standards in the future."

General von Mackensen long has been regarded as one of the most brilliant of the German generals. He was the adjutant of Field Marshal Count von Schlieffen, when he was chief of the general staff, and instructed Emperor William in military history. The emperor later selected him as the immediate superior of the crown prince in the Danzig garrison.

He was born in Hausleipnitz sixty-five years ago and took part in the Franco-Prussian war. After the war he resumed his studies at the university and entered the regular army establishment in 1873. Von Mackensen was appointed an adjutant to the emperor and promoted to the rank of brigadier general in 1898 and the following year was made an hereditary noble. He was elevated to the rank of lieutenant general in 1903 and five years later became general of cavalry and given command of the Seventeenth army corps.

Russia's Minister of War.

The speed with which Russia mobilized her forces at the outbreak of the European war was a surprise to both friend and foe. While her potential strength was known to be immense, it was generally believed that Russia was not prepared for hostilities. But the war with Japan had its lesson, and the czar and his military advisers have been active in army reorganization.

Probably to General W. A. Sukhomlinoff more than to any other man is due the strength of Russia's forces today. Formerly military governor of Kieff, Podolia and Volhynia, General Sukhomlinoff was made minister of war in Stolypin's cabinet in 1909. He was then recognized to be a man of more energy and strategic ability than any of the functionaries in the war department, and the result has been the wisdom of that opinion. He succeeded General Dragomiroff at Kieff and learned his campaigning with that redoubtable soldier in the Turkish war. Sukhomlinoff's work has always been among the strategic problems of Russia's Austrian and German frontiers, and he is thoroughly familiar with the country in which the czar's armies are now operating.

Sukhomlinoff is now in his sixty-sixth year, but as his personal tastes are for a simple life he is a much younger man than most Russian officers of his years.

ECONOMIZE ON YOUR MEDICINE.

PEOPLE'S DRUG STORE WILL SELL 100 BOTTLES OF MEDICINE AT HALF PRICE. MAKE YOUR OWN COUGH MEDICINE.

One hundred residents of Gettysburg will have a chance to get a 50c bottle (but only one to each family) of Schiffmann's Concentrated Expectorant at half price, at People's Drug Store, today and tomorrow only, but remember on these days only. With a view to giving those who have not yet used this excellent remedy an opportunity of trying it, the proprietor and People's Drug Store have decided to reduce the price so as to give the first 100 applying a regular 50c bottle for 25c, by presenting the coupon below. Even though not in need of a medicine at the present time, it will pay to take advantage of this opportunity, as some remedy is quite sure to be required before the winter is over, but this remedy cannot be obtained at half price again.

This latest method of supplying a remedy in such strongly concentrated form, where you buy all pure medicine in small bottles, is more economical. Instead of buying, to break up a cold or cough, several bottles of old fashioned, ready-made remedies, containing only a small quantity of real medicine and a large proportion of sugar and water, also paying for bottles, corks, labels, etc., better to get a 2-ounce bottle of Schiffmann's Concentrated Expectorant and mix it at home, making your own sugar syrup (according to directions) and make a full pint of the best Cough Medicine, besides saving $2.00 to $3.00, which this quantity would cost for the same amount of the ordinary kind. One bottle will also probably be a sufficient quantity to last a family the entire winter. Absolutely no chloroform, opium, morphine, or any other narcotic is contained in this remedy. It is pleasant to take and children are fond of it. Besides absolutely no risk whatever is run in buying this remedy, as People's Drug Store will refund your 25c if it is not found the very best remedy ever used for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough or Hoarseness. Persons calling after these 100 bottles are sold, or living out of the city where they are unable to get it from their local druggist, will not be disappointed, but will be sent a bottle, postpaid, upon receipt of the coupon and 25c, providing they order of the proprietor today.

Address R. J. Schiffmann, 205 W. 6th St., St. Paul, Minn.

TWENTY-FIVE CENT COUPON—NO. 2

This coupon and 25c is good for one (only) 50c bottle of Schiffmann's Concentrated Expectorant at People's Drug Store, if presented today or tomorrow, and your name and address is filled in.
